MFS DC Takes

How well do participants understand target date funds?

Solid understanding of some target date features...

...but more education may be needed on others

understand TDFs get more conservative as they get closer to retirement

see TDFs as an easy way to diversify with one investment believe TDFs provide a guaranteed stream of income in retirement believe TDFs provide a guaranteed rate of return

believe TDFs invest entirely in cash or other low risk investments in retirement

No clear path on how participants will use TDF's in retirement

Sponsor Spotlight: Adding to the Confusion

- I will ask an advisor what to do
- Yes, but I will move some retirement assets to other investments
- Yes, I will continue to use TDFs for all my retirement assets
- No, I will sell my TDF and use other investments
- I will move my assets into my plan's managed account option
- I don't know

40%

Actively encourage participants to stay in plan after they retire

67%

Have TDFs with a "through retirement" glidepath that continues to get more conservative through retirement

Percentages represent the sum of respondents that chose strongly agree or agree with each statement. This question was posed to respondents that answered they are invested in a TDF. Bottom Left Q: When you retire, do you expect to continue in a TDF? A target date fund is a fund whose allocation to stocks and bonds is designed to become more conservative as you near retirement or reach a certain age. TDFs = target date funds. MFS 2023 DC Plan Sponsor Survey. Bottom Right Q: A. Does your plan want to keep participants' assets in the plan after they retire? B. Does the glidepath end at retirement age or does the portfolio continue to get more conservative through retirement?

DC Regulatory and Legislative Happenings

401Kids

In January, Democrats introduced 401Kids Savings Account Act of 2024, bicameral-proposed legislation aimed at creating children's savings accounts, which could be used toward college, starting a business, housing or retirement savings.

The proposed bill would create a savings account for all newborns and children under age 18. Families could contribute up to $2,500 per year toward the accounts and lower- and moderate-income families would receive federal support. Participants could withdraw funds starting at age 18.

The accounts would be built on state 529 plan platforms and managed by state treasurers.

Federal Auto-IRAs

In February, Representative Richard Neal introduced the Automatic IRA Act of 2024.

The proposed legislation would require employers with more than 10 employees, who do not have a retirement plan, to automatically enroll workers in IRAs or similar vehicles at a rate of at least 6% and increases annually to 10% of compensation beginning in 2027.

The bill would carve out employers who have enrolled in state programs by 2027.

Many retirement firms and trade groups have voiced support for the bill.

CITs in 403(b)s...maybe

In March, the House of Representatives passed H.R. 2799, Expanding Access to Capital Act.

In the legislative proposal, 403(b) plans managed under ERISA would be given the authority to use collective investment trusts (CITs).

The bill was passed along party lines. It now moves to the Senate, but the timeline for consideration is not clear.

As a reminder, SECURE 2.0 updated required tax law to permit CITs in 403(b) plans but did not make necessary changes to the securities laws.

Fiduciary Rule Progress

In March, the DOL sent a final version of the Retirement Security Rule: Definition of an Investment Advice Fiduciary to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) for review.

The text of the Fiduciary Rule will not be available until it is released. During the public comment period, the DOL received approximately 425 substantive comment letters and nearly 20,000 petitions to the proposal.

OMB review can take up to 90 days and is the final stage of the regulatory process before a final rule is published.

The final rule will likely be released near the end of May, not far from the original timing outlined in the first release of the proposed rule.
